ALA Orlando ANNUAL CONFERENCE & EXHIBITION

The American Library Association's Annual Conference continues to deliver the content that provides value to attendees from across the country and across the industry. Whether learning in meeting rooms or on the exhibit floor, attendees come to the Annual Conference because they know it delivers the biggest return for their investment. With a wide range of activities, the exhibit floor has become a great place for attendees to search for new products, hear interesting speakers, meet emerging authors and examine peer poster presentations.

The Annual Conference returns to a revitalized convention center district with new hotels, restaurants and clean regulated taxis. The entire exhibit and meeting campus will be walkable, making it easier for exhibitors and attendees to enjoy the Annual Conference and have more time for the exhibits!

For exhibitors, the Annual Conference consistently ranks among the top tradeshows for attendee buying power. In 2015, the percent of attendees involved in the purchase of products exhibited at the annual conference topped 82%. That means that more than 8 out of 10 librarians that see your exhibit have the power to put your products and services into their libraries.

The numbers speak for themselves...a diverse audience from all levels of management, from all type of libraries from across the country with the interest in your products and the power to make a deal. This is your best opportunity to reach the decision makers. The ALA Annual Conference delivers more librarians than any state event, any event for the publishing industry and any niche event for public, special, academic or school libraries.

REACH BEYOND YOUR BOOTH

Increase your visibility with an ad in one of the many publications for conference attendees:

The Annual Conference Program & Exhibits Directory is used on-site by each conference and serves as a reference tool for librarians long after the show has ended. On average, attendees refer to the final program 22 times while at the conference and 52% refer to it after the conference.

Cognotes is the official ALA conference newspaper. Two interactive issues of Cognotes will be emailed to ALA's database of over 80,000 librarians and posted on the Annual Conference website. Current members, past members and regional association members will receive these issues in May and June filled with information to plan their schedules focusing on special programs, general sessions, networking opportunities and all of the exhibit hall activities. The print editions of Cognotes are distributed to each attendee every morning! It is an on the spot forum for your firm to raise its visibility or to announce special events. Overall, 91% of the attendees read more than one issue of Cognotes. And, if you advertise in Cognotes each day, your ad will be in the special Annual Conference wrap-up digital issue. Both the pre- and post-show issues of Cognotes are published as interactive digital editions. With linked articles and ads, these information packed issues are a go to source before and after the conference. Anticipated circulation of the digital editions is 80,000.
